Symptoms of Disease

Disease is a most difficult thing to wrestle with in poultry. It is far easier to prevent it than it is to combat it when it obtains a foothold. Often a person will employ more time and medicine than a bird is worth. The following will help most poultrymen to locate a difficulty and will also suggest treatment:

When the excrement secreted by the kidneys, which is normally white appears yellow, though the droppings are solid and the bird appears perfectly healthful lookout for bowel trouble

When the crop is hard, distended and unyielding there is danger of the bird becoming crop bound.

When the discharges are streaked with blood it is time to give preventatives for diarrhoea.

When the joints are hot and swollen and the fowl is disinclined to stand, rheumatism has taken hold.

When the nostrils are clogged with dirt and the eyes water, ward off possible cases of roup by timely treatment. If the case is bad, apply the hatchet.

When the bird is lame in one foot and a small swelling is observed remove it to a place where there is no roosts and compel it to roost on some straw or other material. It is a bumble foot and is cured in this manner.

When a hen drops down behind, goes to the nest often, but does not lay she is suffering from disorder of the oviduct and might as well be killed and eaten.

When a bird is "going light," has a good appetite, but passes food from the bowels undigested, it is the early stages of consumption and treatment is useless.

When a bird has leg weakness with no disorder of the liver, feed lighter and give plenty of bone forming food.

When new fowls are bought they should be quarantined until one is assured that they have no disease that is communicable to the flock.

When a bird has difficulty in breathing it is well to look out for pneumonia.

When a fowl is dangerously sick with any organic disease it is worse than useless to use it as a breeder as it will communicate the same tendencies to its young and thus weak flocks are established.

When a fowl sneezes, waters slightly at the eyes and nostrils and the face puffs up, it is a common cold. When accompanied by rattling it is bronchitis. Difficult breathing, pneumonia. Canker in the mouth, diphtheria

When the discharges from the nostrils are profuse and ill smelling it is roup. Looseness of the bowels usually accompanies this trouble.

Greenish discharges, turning to frothy white, are given as a symptom of cholera.

A dark, purple comb indicates congestion of the liver.—Poultry.

Tennessee State Fair.

Nashville, Tenn., July, 1st, 1907.

Dear Sir:—

The Tennessee State Fair Association will hold its second annual fair in the city of Nashville, September 23rd-28th, 1907.

You are no doubt aware of the fact that this fair is recognized as one of the greatest fairs in the United States.

The management were so well pleased with the reception accorded the Poultry show at the fair last year and the tremendous success attending same and realizing as they do the importance of this great industry to the people of the state and south, they have decided to offer

$1150.00 IN CASH PREMIUMS.

In this department this year, besides there will be $50.00 Silver Cup, $25.00 Banner Gold Special and other attractive special premiums.

The Pigeon and Pet Stock department of the big Poultry show will be a prominent feature.

A poultry institute will be another big feature of this show, free to those interested in raising poultry. The best lecturers and demonstrators have been engaged to instruct those attending the Institute which will be located on the grounds and continue the entire week of the fair.

Another feature will be the exhibition yards, where flocks of the various breeds of thoroughbred poultry will be exhibited under natural conditions. A big egg laying contest is now being arranged.

All of these besides other attractions, aside from the great poultry show, will make the poultry section the greatest poultry event ever arranged by a state fair.

Nashville besides being the greatest poultry center of the south is now recognized by the breeders over the entire country as one of the greatest poultry show cities in the Union. A winning at Nashville means much to the poultry breeders. A winning at Nashville is a valuable asset to any poultry plant. Come and bring your birds.

Yours, truly,

JOHN A. MURKIN, Jr., Sup't Poultry Dept.
